ACADEMIC CUSTOMS AND DRESS

The origins of many customs of the academic world are to be traced to the Middle Ages, particularly the eleventh and twelfth centuries when the first European universities – Bologna, Paris and Oxford – were founded.

In their original organization, the universities were like medieval corporations or guilds. In fact the word “universitas” originally referred to any kind of corporation. The students at the universities were equated to guild apprentices, and so the completion of the apprenticeship was celebrated by a “commencement” marking the beginning of their careers.

In the twelfth century, everyone wore gowns. The social and economic status of an individual was shown by the extra features, such as fur trimming, on the gowns. Cloaks with hoods were worn over gowns for protection in bad weather. Degrees began to be awarded in the thirteenth century, and different styles of gowns and different colors came to represent the various degrees and disciplines.

Over the centuries the styles of dress changed, and by the seventeenth century, the wearing of gowns by men had virtually ceased. But the universities, particularly those in Britain, continued to be conservative and strict in the manner of academic customs and dress. At Oxford, for instance, candidates for master’s degrees had to swear that they owned a gown and would always wear it at the proper times.

The first American universities were founded on English models. However, the wearing of academic dress was not universal and ceased during the Civil War. The custom was revived in the late nineteenth century, and in 1895 an academic custom code was adopted which, with modifications, is still used.

Most American universities have the standard black gown with the hood serving to distinguish the individual institution. Some American and European universities have adopted or preserved more distinctive gowns. There are three styles of gowns, distinguished mainly by the sleeves: the bachelor’s gown, with long pointed sleeves; the master’s, with a squared sleeve, cut so the forearm is free; the doctoral, with bell-shaped sleeves with three velvet bands.

The hood is the really distinguishing feature of modern gowns, indicating the degree (the width of the edging band), the discipline (the color of the band) and the college or university (the colors of the lining). Today’s graduates have hoods edged in white (B.A., MALS), gold (B.S., BLS), drab (BPS, MBA), or light blue (M.Ed., M.S.). Many faculty members will have blue edging indicating the Ph.D. degree. The faculty will be wearing hoods representing many distinguished institutions of higher education, e.g., orange and maroon for Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, red and black for Rutgers University, orange and white for the University of Tennessee, blue and gray for Georgetown University, and navy blue and orange for the University of Virginia.

PRESIDENTIAL COLLAR

Chains of office, also known as collars, originated in the Middle Ages and are worn today by presidents on ceremonial occasions as part of their regalia. Worn today for the first time, the University of Mary Washington chain is a unique design crafted from gold-plated sterling silver with lapis lazuli gem accents by jeweler Susannah Ravenswing. Symbols important to the history of the University are incorporated in every element of the chain. A large medallion depicting the school seal is flanked by white oak leaves modeled after the oak tree at Brompton, home of the president. The names of the six presidents of this institution alternate with its six historical names on links that are connected with dogwood blossoms, the State tree.

THE ACADEMIC MACE

The tradition of the academic mace began in the late fourteenth century when two ancient instruments, the royal scepter and the battle mace, were combined to form a symbol of the authority of the president or rector of a university. Noblemen carried the battle mace as both a weapon and staff of command, and the sovereign used the regal scepter as a sign of rulership, justice and authority.

Together with the chain of office, the academic mace indicates that the president of the university is the temporary embodiment of the power, authority, autonomy and sovereignty vested in the institution represented.

At the University of Mary Washington the faculty marshal carries the academic mace, on behalf of the president, at public events such as commencement exercises, inaugurations and convocations.

The University of Mary Washington mace was designed by Asprey and Company of London, England, and was first used for the May 1970 Commencement.

Taddesse Adera
Professor of English

Professor Taddesse Adera joined the faculty of the University of Mary Washington in 1989, after earning his B.A. from Addis Ababa University (Addis Ababa, Ethiopia) and his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Washington, all in English Literature. Dr. Adera's teaching and research interests included South African, Caribbean, and postcolonial literature; literature of the Resistance; literature of women of color; and 19th-century British fiction. He became an integral member of the university community, serving as chair of the Promotion and Tenure Committee, as Campus Fulbright Advisor, and as a member of the Race and Gender Project, and the Black Faculty and Staff Association. His professional accomplishments included serving as executive committee member and chair of the Division on African Literatures of the Modern Language Association, editing for several scholarly journals, and participating as a member of the National Screening Committee for the Fulbright Program. Among his distinguishing awards are Virginia's Outstanding Faculty Award by the State Council of Higher Education in 1997 and the University's Jepson Fellow Award for distinctive contributions in teaching, research and service. Dr. Adera was the recipient of a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to study contemporary South African literature and culture, as well as numerous University of Mary Washington faculty resource grants. Dr. Adera was also a productive scholar. He edited Silence is Not Golden: A Critical Anthology of Ethiopian Literature and translated V.I. Lenin's The State and Revolution into Amharic, his native language. He published both poetry and short stories and presented more than 20 scholarly papers at regional, national and international conferences. His edited anthology, The Road Less Traveled: Reflections on the Literatures of the Horn of Africa, is expected to be published by Africa World Press in June 2006.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

MARION C. BLAKEY

Marion C. Blakey received her bachelor's degree with honors in International Studies from Mary Washington in 1970. She subsequently studied in the School of Advanced International Studies at Johns Hopkins University, where her graduate work focused on Middle East affairs.

Ms. Blakey has had a long and distinguished career of public service, including four presidential appointments, holding key positions at the Department of Commerce, Department of Education, National Endowment for the Humanities, White House, and Department of Transportation, including the chairmanship of the National Transportation Safety Board.

From 1993 to 2001, she was the principal of Blakey and Associates, now Blakey and Agnew, a Washington, DC public affairs consulting firm that focuses particularly on transportation issues and traffic safety.

In September of 2002, Ms. Blakey became administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration, in which position she is responsible for regulating and advancing the safety of the nation's airways, as well as operating the world's largest air traffic control system. During her tenure as head of the agency, she has managed a number of accident investigations including the historic crash of American Airlines flight 587. She has worked to improve the Board's accident reporting process and has increased industry and regulatory responsiveness to safety recommendations. In addition, she has strengthened the Board's advocacy and outreach programs to promote safer travel throughout all modes of transportation.

THE EAGLE PIPE BAND

Performing at today's commencement ceremony is the Eagle Pipe Band. The band was formed in 1997 with a small combination of Mary Washington students and members of the Fredericksburg community. It has grown steadily each year, adding pipers, drummers and dancers.

Of special interest, the Eagle Pipe Band was founded by, and is under the direction of, Dr. Raymond B. Scott, Professor of Chemistry at the University of Mary Washington. The tartan worn by the performers was designed by the University to match the school colors, and is registered in Scotland's official registry of tartans.

With extreme pride, the band performs "Salute to William Anderson," a tribute written and composed by Dr. Scott to celebrate Dr. Anderson's retirement. For easy reference, this will be the first tune played as the band and the Presidential platform party departs the field following today's ceremony.
